The most spectacular place in the world is completely white ... and blue

They say that to get married you need something blue, and obviously something white, and what better than a place that has both? If you are about to get married or if you just want a getaway, do not hesitate to visit Santorini, Greece.

The place, which was one of the first to open its doors to visitors after the pandemic, is receiving travelers from all over the world, obviously showing that you have been vaccinated.

With this in mind, and with winter just around the corner, we wanted to make a guide to the 5 places you must visit if you go to Santorini, Greece.

Santorini, Greece

Stay in Katikies Santorini

For those looking for luxury, there is nothing better than Katikies. The boutique hotel group owns five properties on the west side of the island, they are exactly what you want when you think of a nice hotel.

Katikies is also credited with introducing the popular cave-hotel concept, that uses rooms that are built into the cliffs. Photo: The Travel Magazine area.

Take a walk through the village of Oia

Although there are many other villages throughout Santorini, notably Fira, Imerovigli, Perissa, Pyrgos, and Emporia, Oia is the one that people tend to talk about the most.

It can definitely get quite crowded during peak season, but that's because it has so much to offer, from its famous azulejo churches, to its upscale boutiques, selling everything from high-quality local olive oil to beautiful gold jewelry.

Rent a boat

It doesn't matter if you have been here for a long time or a short time, seeing all the smaller islands up close and enjoying a walk in the Aegean Sea will be the best thing you will do in your life.

Visit a wine cellar

Even though Greece was one of the top wine producers in the ancient world, most people don't think of the country as one of the top wine destinations, but it is.
